INTRODUCTION

The year 1934 marks the 400th anniversary of Martin Luther's translation of the Bible into German. This event will be celebrated, not only in Germany, but throughout the world, and not only by Lutherans, but by many other Christians. Many books have, of course, been written on such a delightful and fruitful theme, and many more will be written. The present work is one of these commemorative volumes. It consists of tables of languages into which the Bible (or portions of it) has been translated and printed. There are six tables: Chronological, Geographical, Philological, Textual, Alphabetical and Polyglottal.

Luther's translation of the Scriptures--first, the New Testament in 1522, and then, the whole Bible in 1534--gave an impetus to Bible translating that was at once felt throughout Europe and has lasted to our own day. The people began to clamor for a Bible like Luther's, in which the sense and spirit of the original was faithfully reproduced in the idiom of the common people. The translators began to use it as a model and are still using it as such. Luther is thus the most important factor in getting the Word of God into the languages of mankind and in securing for men the freedom to read the Word without fear.

The most influential force in actually making Bible translations are the Bible societies. It has been said that Luther himself founded the first of these in his Bible Translating Club, which met weekly at his house to discuss his translation while it was in the process of making. Wm. Dallmann says that the first Bible society was organized in 1555 in Wuertemberg under Peter Paul Vergerius, Primas Truber and Hans Ungnad, to give the Word of God to the Hungarians, Wends and Croats. The oldest living Bible society is the Canstein Bible Institute of Germany, founded in 1710. The largest Bible Society is the British and Foreign Bible Society, organized in 1804. The American Bible Society, dating from 1816, is the second largest. Most countries now have one or more Bible societies, whose sole aim is the translation and circulation of the Holy Scriptures, without note or comment. There was once an American Lutheran Bible Society, which lapsed at the death of its president, Rev. J.K. Lauritzen of Knoxville, Tenn. The work begun by Luther of translating, revising, printing and circulating the Word of God has not been finished. Meillet and Cohen have enumerated 6,760 languages. Their list is not complete. The whole Bible has been translated into only 180 languages, portions of it into only about 1,000. The languages are constantly changing. The Bible versions often need to be revised to keep up with the language changes. There are not Bibles enough to go around to all. Most people outside of Christendom have never heard of the Bible. Many within Christendom do not own a copy. So there is work to do now, as in the days of Luther.

PREFACE

The printing of tables and tabular material in our age, which largely now uses linotype machines, has become practically prohibitive in cost. American inventive genius, however, is beginning to find a way (which some day may give the linotype machine an opportunity to cool a bit) whereby statistical and tabular material can be presented in a form that is legible and at a cost that is not prohibitive. This photographic-lithographic reproduction process is as yet in its infancy and is calling to its aid the engineering experts that have produced paper, typewriters, photographic machines; and, practically the entire chemical science. We are at the beginning of a new age which may see the disuse of Gutenberg's movable type. This photographic-lithographic reproduction process has come to the aid of the National Lutheran Council in the presentation of the tables on Bible societies, races, and languages, produced by the American scholar, Dr. Olaf Morgan Norlie. The National Lutheran Council rejoices that it is able to present this vast amount of material because of its informational as well as its scholarly character. The pamphlet is indeed a worthy supplement to a worthy book, "The Translated Bible"; and, also to the brochure "Luther Translates the Bible", both by the same editor and author. The brochure contains maps locating the thousand languages given in this work.

A Chronological Classification of Bible Translations.

The Bible had been translated in whole or in part into some 25 languages before the art of printing from movable type was invented. Printing began about the year 1450, but the first larger book ever printed was not completed before 1456. It was the Latin translation of the Bible, known as the Vulgate, made by Jerome in 382 A.D. This first printed Bible is known as the Gutenberg Bible, sometimes also as the Fust and Schoeffer Bible, or the Mazarin Bible, or the Forty-Two Line Bible. Since 1456 the Bible has been translated in whole or in part into more than 1,000 languages and dialects.

In the following list no distinction between language and dialect is made. The distinction at best is often hard to make, and authorities differ a lot as to what is a language and what is a dialect, or when is a dialect a language and when is a language a dialect.

Three columns to the right mark the dates in which the first printed edition appeared for each language. Column No. 1 gives the date of some portion smaller than a Testament. Column No. 2 gives the date of the New Testament; but if the Old Testament was published before the New Testament, then the date of the Old Testament is given instead, but with a star (*) in front of it. Column 3 gives the date in which the whole Bible appeared in print for the first time, but not necessarily in one volume.

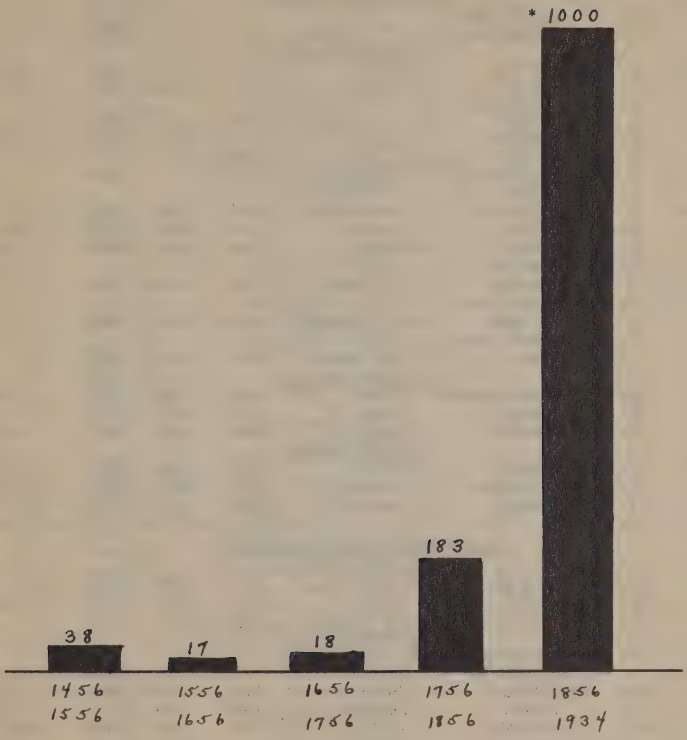
The column to the extreme right is devoted to the output of the British and Foreign Bible Society (B.F.B.S.), which is by far the largest single publisher of the Word of God. In 1933 this Society had published the Bible, or some portion of it, in 667 languages, a grand total in 129 years of 442,471,067 Scriptures, approximately one-fourth of the total output of printed Scriptures since printing began. The figures in this column are from 1804 to 1933.

The table is not complete. The chief omissions are some French and Indian distinct dialect translations, which the compiler has not had access to. In 1831 the Royal Antiquarian Society of France made a translation of the Parable of the Prodigal Son in 85 dialects, and a similar list in the "Linguistic Survey of India" includes a 100 or more of the dialects of that land of many tongues and scripts.

Notwithstanding there are 1,014 tongues in this list.

The bulk of the list is taken from works issued by the British and Foreign Bible Society, such as their Annual Reports, their "Historical Catalogue", and their Special Reports like R. Kilgour's "Gospel in Many Tongues" and "Gospel in Many Years". The "Historical Catalogue" (by Darlow and Moule) has 609 languages. The "Gospel in Many Years" (1929) has 886 languages. The "Gospel in Many Tongues" (1933) gives specimens of 665 languages (and their scripts) in which the B.F.B.S. has published or circulated some portion of the Word of God. Another important source of information is the American Bible Society. Access has been had to the Reports of this Society, Pick's "Translations of the Bible" (1913), and the Century of Progress Display at Chicago. Pick had 653 languages on his list and the Chicago Display had 935 in 1933, with two additions in the 1934 Display. These two societies have a combined total of 1,007 languages. The works of various other Bible societies have been searched for corrigenda and addenda information; also works on Bible translation by such authors as J. Belsheim, T.C. Bernhoft, W. Cotton, L.K. Daa, C. Paul, A. Schramm, and the contributors to Norlie's "Translated Bible" (1934).

The influence of the Bible societies can be seen in comparing the output by decades and by centuries. In the 15th century (1456-1500) the Scriptures were issued in 19 languages; in the 16th century, in 29; in the 17th century, in 14; in the 18th, 20; in the 19th, 519; and in the first third of the 20th (1901-1933), 413 languages, making a total of 1,014, as listed here. During the first 100 years of printing (1456-1555) the Bible appeared in 38 languages; the second 100 years, in 17 languages; the third, 18; the fourth, 183; and the fifth 100 years (1856-1955), at the present pace, will have a showing of 1,000 languages. Over 93 per cent of these translations have been made since the Carnstein Bible Institute started in 1710; 920 languages have gotten the Word of God since the B.F.B.S. began in 1804. The following diagram illustrates the advance of Bible translations by centuries.



BIBLE TRANSLATIONS BY CENTURIES - THE WORK OF THE BIBLE SOCIETIES

*At the present rate of 100 per decade, the total for the century will be 1,000 provided the present rate is maintained.

Note: 1 refers to year of publication for first portion of the Bible; 2 refers to the first New Testament, or *2 refers to the first Old Testament; 3 refers to the first Bible version printed. B.F.B.S. refers to the British and Foreign Bible Society editions (total output) from 1804 to 1933. Place refers to chief place spoken.

Table II: Geographical

A Geographical Classification of Bible Translations

This table tries to show some one place where each language is at home. Thus, English is located in England, France belongs to France, Mandan belongs to North Dakota, etc.

To Africa we must look for 310 of the languages; to Asia, for 219; to Europe, 195; 5 are International; 69 belong to North America; 188, to Oceanica; 22, to South America, and 6 are not yet definitely located by the compiler.

About one-half of the languages are spoken in British and United States possessions--453 British, 49 United States, a total of 502. There are 162 represented in the British possessions of Africa, 127 in Asia, 34 in Europe, 23 in North America, 104 in Oceanica, and 3 in South America. The United States has one International language, and 33 Indian languages in North America, and 15 other languages in Oceanica.

In the French possessions Scripture is found in 114 languages. Next comes China with 51 languages having Scripture. The Belgian possessions have 47 translations; the Dutch, 41; the Russian, 31; the Italian, 24; the German and Spanish, 21 each; the Portuguese, 19; the Japanese, 11; the Abyssinian, 10.

Norway has 9 languages; Switzerland has 7; Egypt, Siam and Turkey have 6 each; Denmark, Latvia and Liberia have 5 each; Albania, Bulgaria, Mexico and Peru have 4 each; Bolivia, Esthonia, Finland, Hungary, Persia and Rumania have 3 each; Argentine, Arabia, Brazil, Costa Rica, Czechoslovakia, Greece, Guatemala, Jugoslavia, Lithuania, Nepal, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay and Sweden have 2 each; and Afghanistan, Chili, Ecuador, Poland and Venezuela have 1 each. Six are not yet accounted for.

Note: 1 refers to year of publication of first Portion of Bible; 2 refers to the first New Testament, *2 refers to the first Old Testament; 3 refers to the first Complete Bible. ? means that the date is uncertain. The numbers at the left refer to the respective places in the Chronological Classification (Table I).

Dialects are placed after a colon (:).
Duplicate names are placed within parentheses (--).

.Table III: Philological

A Philological Classification of Bible Translations

The languages of the world, like the races of mankind, have been classified in various ways. The most satisfactory way seems to be according to the principle of descent from Noah's sons. Noah had three sons-- Shem, Ham and Japhet, and all the sons of men have descended from these. There are three chief races of men--the Semitic, the Hamitic and the Japhetic, and there are three chief types of language--the Semitic, the Hamitic and the Japhetic. These three groups have in the main racially and linguistically the same characteristics and history. Within each group there are many racial and linguistic families. Thus, the Teutonic peoples form a large racial family within the Japhetic group and each of them speaks a Teutonic language. All these Teutonic languages form a family of languages called Teutonic, which in vocabulary, alphabet, sentence structure, script and content have very much in common, like brothers and sisters in a family. In the same way there is a Celtic, a Slavic, an Italic and various other families, having biological similarities as to race and morphological as to language.

A summary of the 1,014 translations by families is given herewith:

Table IV: Textual

A Textual Classification of Bible Translations

Some portion of Scripture has been translated into at least a thousand languages. An analysis of R. Kilgour's "Gospel in Many Lands" reveals the following facts: The book gives a chronological list of the printed editions of Holy Scripture in 886 languages. There are 118 Bibles in this tabulation: 333 New Testaments; 57 Old Testaments; 1,896 portions as large as one book or more; 257 parts less than one book; 3 editions of an Apocryphal book--a total of 2,664 separate publications. The most popular units in order of their frequency were: New Testament, 333; Matthew, 309; Mark, 252; Luke, 191; John, 191; Psalms, 136; Bible, 118; Genesis, 99; Gospels, 75; and Old Testament, 57.

The Century of Progress Display of Bible translations listed 935 languages in 1933. All of these had some portion of the Bible; 845 had at least one book; 364 had at least the New Testament; and only 173 had the whole Bible.

In the following Textual Classification the whole Bible is accredited to 180 language the New Testament to 196 languages additional, or 376 languages; some portion of Scripture to 638 languages additional, or 1,014 languages, of which the date of publication is uncertain in 34 instances.
